

Good morning parents, this is Vaughn White, Superintendent of Hesperia Community Schools with a brief message.

Parents, I am calling with some information and a few reminders. First, our next food distribution will take place tomorrow, Wednesday, November 25 from 11:00 to 12:00 p.m. This will take place at the high school office entrance. Please use social distancing when waiting in line.

Second, our offices are open today and until 11:00 a.m. tomorrow for the second round of Chromebook distribution. Parents may pick up one additional Chromebook per family based upon your specific needs.

Last, we are working on a bus schedule for tutoring that we hope to begin next week beginning Monday, November 30. A bus driver will contact you regarding a timeframe for pick-up and tutoring if your child was identified for this support.

Parents, these are incredibly challenging times as we navigate this pandemic and the supports needed for your children. We continue to appreciate your patience as we move forward with this process. As I reflect on these upcoming days with Thanksgiving and Christmas approaching, I wish to appreciate all of the sacrifices you have been through with your families and I wish to thank our staff as well for their hard work in making learning available for your children.

Have a Happy Thanksgiving.
